On the other hand, Raymond Clark, who was Volk's foreman on the Stock Exchange job, puts the whole concection of the labor row theory up to Volk bimself. Clark left Volk's employ last Saturday. The foreman is a trusted licutenant of Brindell. The fact that Clark was shot by a gunman on Octo-

During yesterday's session of the Lockwood committee, which Clark attended, he said to reporters:

"The shooting was absolutely apart from any labor trouble. It was a private matter. I know who shot me, but I don't care to say who it was. Volk gave The Evening World its theory. In my opinion, the whole thing bunk."
